HEAD TO TAIL

While feeding wholesome, nutritious foods like Life's Abundance® and Instinctive Choice® can make an enormous impact on the health of companion animals, supplements can play a vital role in fulfilling their individual dietary needs.

As pet parents, we want to do everything possible to support the wellbeing of our companion animals. But it may not be a simple matter to determine which nutrients are needed for their optimal health.

You see, no two pets are the same, due to a wide variety of factors. These factors include differences in breeds, the demands associated with different life stages, individual health states, unique personalities, living environments and overall activity levels. In part, it is because of your pet's specific needs that adding a supplement to their daily nutritional intake is more important than you might have originally believed.

To further support the long-term health of your companion animal, Dr. Jane Bicks created two daily food supplements, one for cats and one for dogs. Using advanced nutritional veterinary science, these formulas supply pets with the additional nutrients they need to be as healthy as possible.

Life's Abundance Wellness Food Supplement for Cats

Have you ever tried to give a pill to a cat? If you have, you know exactly why we created a supplement in kibble form. The fact that cats don't know they're eating a supplement when you give them Life's Abundance® Wellness Food Supplement For Cats is just one great feature of this product.

Because every feline has unique nutritional needs, our holistic veterinarian has formulated a special supplement that provides additional nutrients from real foods to help meet these needs. The nutrients contained in this top-quality supplement are derived from foods such as chicken, pork, salmon, herring, fish oil, tomato and alfalfa sprouts.

These chewable nuggets are so tasty that even the most finicky of felines are sure to enjoy them. If you are looking for an inexpensive way to help bridge the gap between average and optimal health, consider providing your cat with Life's Abundance Wellness Food Supplement.
